He is also supplying his Quarry with "Derrick" for the handling and loading large stones, using up expensive wagons, carts and trucks, and the most approved appliances for moving and dimension stone of any size, from two to the square, and from six to twenty inches thick,

Douglas vs. Douglas and the Missouri Compromise.

From Douglas' Speech in Springfield, Ill., 1850.

The Missouri Compromise had its origin in the hearts of all patriotic men who desired to preserve and perpetuate the blessings of our glorious Union—on origin akin to that of the constitution of the United States, consecrated and the same spirit of fraternal affection, and calculated to secure forever the only danger which threatens at once the Union and the rights of the colored people.

At the evidence of public opinion at that day seem to indicate that this compromise had become canonized in the hearts of the American people as a sacred thing, which no ruthless hand would ever dare touch.

From Douglas' Speech at Providence, Aug. 9, 1850.

My friends, you are here, as I am, in the face of a great and terrible enemy, as the case may be—wanting to know something of the Missouri Compromise. [Cheers.] I have not the slightest objection to telling you all the details known upon that question. I BROUGHT IN THE BILL TO REPEAL THE MISSOURI RESTRICTION.

How Non-Intervention Works.

"I believe that it is the right of the state to demand and the duty of congress to extend protection of persons and property of every kind (including slavery) in the territories within their territorial state."—Herbert V. Johnson.

From Douglas' Speech in the Senate, May 16, 1850.

"It is part of the history of the country that under this doctrine of non-intervention, this doctrine that you delight to call sagacious sovereignty, the people of Mexico have been introduced and protected slavery in the whole of that territory. Under this doctrine they have converted a tract of free territory into a slave territory more than five times the size of the state of New York."

Under this doctrine slavery has been extended from the border of the United States to the Gulf of California, and from the line of the republic of Mexico, not only up to 39 deg.
30 min., but up to 39 deg.—giving you a degree and a half more slave territory than you ever claimed."

EXTRASTASTIC.

The editor of the Democratic Platform, published at Calhoun, Georgia, goes into ecstasies over a sentiment recently offered on a public occasion, by a gentleman of Savannah. Just hear him:

A GOLDEN SENTIMENT.—Write it upon pages of adamant, that the corroding tooth
of time never obliterates its legitimacy, in golden letters that its purity may never be effaced nor obscured by the fire of fanaticism and ignorance—paint it upon the canvas of the blue vault of heaven—"with a pencil of sunbeams, dipped in the colors of the rainbow"—forever proclaim it in tones of loudest thunder—the never-dying truth contained in the sentiment expressed by Mayor Arnold, of Savannah, at the late annual parade of the fire department of that city:—"The element of southern prosperity; African muscle, directed by Caucasian brains."

The city debt of Philadelphia is twenty-one millions of dollars, and they are about padding two more for public buildings.

Douglas' Reception in Janesville.

At 10 o'clock this morning the cars arrived with Mr. Douglas, in charge of the committee of reception. He was met at the depot by two companies of "giants" numbering 35 men and boys, with a band of music.
The committee, with Mr. D. and the escort, comprising four carriages, left the Hyatt House, proceeded across the lower bridge and up Court street, returning by the upper bridge, through the busiest part of the town, and were soon safely housed in the apartments of A. Hyatt Smith prepared for the reception of the "greatest of living statesmen," without the knowledge even of men who were on the lookout for the procession.
Not a gun was fired, not a shout or huzza
was uttered, while the cortege passed silently and solemnly as a funeral train. At the Hyatt House, after the march through the streets was ended, Mr. Douglas and his escort met by a crowd numbering 200 or 300, men and boys, mostly republicans who felt a laudable curiosity to see a presidential candidate.

We felt mortified and chagrined for our democratic friends. Mr. Douglas looked as if he could sympathize with us. It was demonstrated that popular sovereignty is not popular in Rock, and that the democracy had made a mistake if they expected a crowd. Thus far the whole thing is a melancholy failure. Perhaps the speaking in the afternoon may bring out republicans enough to make the democrats feel better.
At this present writing they look as if they hadn't yet found their mother, with very little prospect of ever discovering her.

Really, we have not the heart to press
this matter any further. It seems cruel—we may have more to say as to that. If the news of the elections in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio had reached the ears of the democracy that might explain their absence.
But that cannot be, as they are yet waiting for something "definite" through their organ,
the Daily Democrat.

THE MEETING IN THE AFTERNOON.

Nearly two thousand people gathered in front of the Hyatt House, this afternoon, to hear Mr. Douglas speak. We should judge that one-half of these were from the country. There was one band, and half a dozen banners including the national flag.

Mr. Douglas commenced speaking about half past one and continued to speak fifteen minutes, when he said he had received notice from the railroad officers that it was time for him to depart, according to the previous arrangements he had made. [The time was not up for an hour. This was a mere ruse to get away.] His remarks were coldly received; there were a few cheers but there was no heartiness in them. The democracy was either not there or else they had heard some bad news lately which dispelled their enthusiasm. Probably two-thirds were republicans; Mr. Douglas remarked their quietness; said they were a good crowd to talk to, and he supposed there was a large sprinkling of republicans among them. This was the only thing that raised a hearty cheer, which came from the republicans.

Considering the notice that had been given and the distinction of the speaker, the meeting was a failure. It was cold, without animation, and fell like a wet blanket upon the spirits of the party.

Has John Williams become one of the editorial corps of the Democrat? Either this is so, or they are stealing his style.
"Mind that," boys.

The Moqui.—Prof. Newberry, in his paper, read before the American Scientific Association at Newport, R. I., gave a vivid description of the geographical features of the great plateau, sweeping east and west from the Rocky mountains, illustrated by colored drawings. His well-browed, fiercely bearded face, gave evidence of the effect of the sun and winds on the vast, treeless plains that skirt the Colorado. He incidentally gave a most interesting description of that strange people, the Moqui, whose cities we have seen in New Mexico, and but a small remnant of whom now exist.
They belong to a hitherto unknown race.
Prof. Newberry thinks they may be remnants of the Aztecs, who ruled that region on the characteristics, however, of the melancholy remnant who now exist, it seems probable that they are to be referred to the Toltecs,
who were displaced by the Aztecs.

Mr. Newberry described them as a race apparently entirely distinct from any other Indians on this continent. They are small,
have a distinct conformation of skull and face, and are peaceful, gentle, and they were clothed with implements of stone, and built towns of stone and mortar, on the mountain table lands, which rise eight hundred to one thousand feet above the plateau. They build walls around their towns, and their only means of egress is by ladders, which they draw after them when they enter towns. There are seven of these small towns still inhabited by this fast-fading race, but their ruins extend over the whole valley of the Gila. Apparently the ruins of a numbering nation of men and many of them (the towns) five hundred or a thousand years old.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.
Celebration To-Night.

We publish this afternoon the programme of the celebration to-night in honor of the crowning victories in PENNSYLVANIA, INDIANA and OHIO.

This simple announcement is alone sufficient to bring out every republican to participate in it. Let the law of Lord Nelson, get into the fight some how, but he sure to get in, be the motto of republicans on this occasion. Get into the celebration, and give Janesville a thorough shaking up.

Improving.—The Daily Democrat has yet no "positive result" from the elections this week, but thinks the republicans may have carried Ohio and Indiana, and "possibly" Pennsylvania.

The committee appointed to make arrangements for holding a musical convention in this city, this fall, under the direction of Prof. G. R. Root, are requested to meet this (Friday) evening, at 7 o'clock, at the music rooms of E. D. Rootman.

The following gentlemen compose the committee:—D. D. Wilson, S. Ford, Jr., Dr. S. P. Cole, F. L. Landon, A. Thurston, J. C. Mann, F. H. Hornick, Charles Church, P. R. Sampson and John R. Bennett.

Appropriate.—We learn that the band which opened the Douglas celebration played from the balcony of the Hyatt House, "The Love Not Quick-Step." The appropriateness of this piece will be seen by remembering the opening stanza:

"Love not, love not,
The things you love may die."

ATTENTION

Wide Awake!

You have all heard from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Let every member be on hand at 7 o'clock this evening, with torch and full uniform, for a good time.

A. B. McLEAN, Captain.

There will be the usual morning and evening services in the Congregational church on the coming Sabbath. Preaching by Professor Kealey of Beloit.

The lecture on "Africa and its present inhabitants," by the Rev. R. Smith, of Beaver Dam, announced for this evening, in the Presbyterian church, has been postponed to some future day.

MADISON MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.—Mr. G. F. Hastings of Madison, the general agent of the Madison Mutual Insurance Company, has been in our city for some days past adjusting losses sustained by persons residing in Rock county, and insured in this company. We are gratified to learn that this company is in a flourishing condition and that it sustains its reputation for liberality and promptness in paying its losses and in the general management of its business. As a home institution, we wish it entire success. Orrin Guernsey, Esq., of this city, is the general agent for Rock county.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—Mr. J. C. Staller of Bradford was kicked by a horse, yesterday, making a severe wound in the face. The fall force of the blow struck him in the mouth, breaking both the upper and lower jaw, knocking out fourteen teeth, and making a terrible flesh wound upon the lips. He was attended to by Dr. Palmer of this city, and in this morning in a fair way to recover.

HORRIBLE.—A man by the name of Grinnell a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern road, fell from the up freight train on Wednesday, between the cars, at Barrington station, and was run over. He was torn in pieces, portions of his body were scattered along the track for the length of twenty-five cars.

A VOTE ON THE CARS.—The train on the Milwaukee and Mississippi road from Hanover came in this morning with 23 passengers. A vote was taken, and stood 20 for Lincoln, 2 for Douglas and 1 for Breckinridge. Among the Lincoln men was a postmaster.

THAT PLATFORM.—The Douglas men are unfortunate with their platforms this year. They built one for Douglas to use in this city on the east side of the Hyatt House, but had to pull it down, because the "Little Giant" refused to speak from it. The cold north wind did not suit him; it made him hoarse, he said; so they turned his face southward, which was satisfactory. He spoke from the balcony of the Hyatt House.

Yesterday two democrats met on the street near the place where Douglas was to speak in this city. They had a confab about the platform which had just been erected.

Doug. Dem.—That scaffolding is finished and will do pretty well.

Breck. Dem.—No, it is not quite done.

Doug. Dem.—What's wanting?

Breck. Dem.—A rope.

Insurance.

Having resigned the agency of the Home Insurance Company of New York, in favor of Mr. E. L. Dimock, I cordially recommend him to my friends and the patrons of this soundest of sound insurance companies, when in want of insurance.

J. H. VERMILYE.

It will be seen by the above card that E. L. Dimock has added to his already splendid knowledge of insurance companies the well-known Home of New York city, having cash assets amounting to $1,500,000.00. Mr. D. has been appointed agent for one of the solid companies of Old England, viz: The Northern Fire Insurance Company of London, England, with a cash capital of $6,298,000.00. With these additions, the enormous sum of ten millions two hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars. The advertisement for this company will appear to-morrow.

Town of Harmony.

A. C. Bates and Caleb G. Gillett, will address the people at the School House, near John Young's.

Saturday Evening, Oct. 13th.

A general invitation is extended.

The Stedensburg Dwellers Ground.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives some reminiscences of this spot, which are at once interesting and sad. Here, upon the dwelling ground, in a beautiful little grass plot, surrounded by trees, forms, made after the image of God, came to his end. Nature and duty Heaven.

In 1814, Edward Hopkins was killed here in a duel. This seems to be the first fashionable murder of which this place was the theatre.

In 1819, A. T. Mason, a United States senator from Virginia, fought with his sister's husband, John McCarty; here, McCarty was killed, and there, there was no necessity of it; but Mason would fight. McCarty named muskets loaded with grape-shot, and so near together that they would hit each other, fell on their faces. This was changed by the seconds to loading with bullets and taking twelve feet as the distance. Mason was killed instantly, and McCarty, who had his collar bone broken, still lives with Mason's sister in Georgetown. His hair turned white so soon after the fight as to cause comment. He has since been solicited to act as second in a duel, but refused in accordance with a pledge made to his wife soon after killing her brother.

In 1820, Commodore Decatur was killed in a duel here by Commodore Blanton. At the first fire both fell forward, with their heads within ten feet of each other; and, as each supposed himself mortally wounded, each fully and freely forgave the other still lying on the ground.

Decatur immediately expired, but Baron Segal appeared here, fought, and Segal was instantly killed. The neighbors only learned this much from their gloves which they left on the ground. Legas was not hurt.

In 1822, Middleburg Locke was killed here by Clark of the treasury, with their heads within ten feet of each other; and, as each supposed himself mortally wounded, each fully and freely forgave the other still lying on the ground.

In 1826, Henry Clay fought his (second duel) with John Randolph just across the Potomac, as Randolph preferred to die at all, on Virginia soil. He received Clay's shot, and then fired into the air. This was in accordance with a declaration made to Mr. Benton, who spoke to Randolph of a call the evening before on Mrs. Clay, and alluded to the quiet repose of her child and the repose of the mother. Randolph quickly replied:

"I shall do nothing to disturb the sleep of the child or the repose of the mother." General Jessup, whose funeral I attended last week was Clay's second.

When Mr. Randolph fired he remarked: "I do not shoot at you Mr. Clay," and extending his hand advanced toward Clay, who rushed to meet him. Randolph showed Clay where his ball struck his coat, and said facetiously: "Mr. Clay you owe me a coat."

Clay replied: "Thank God the debt is no greater!" They were friends ever after.

In 1832, Martin was killed by Carr. Their first names are not remembered. They were friends to the south.

In 1837, Mr. Key, son of Frank Key, and brother to Barton Key, of Scales notoriety, met Mr. Sherborn, and exchanged a shot, when Mr. Sherborn said:

"Mr. Key, I have no desire to kill you." "No matter," said Key, "I came to kill you."

"Very well then," said Sherborn, "I will kill you." And he did.

In 1838, W. J. Graves, of Kentucky, assuming the quarrel of James Watson Webb with Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, selected this place for Cilley's murder; but the place learning that Webb with two friends, Jackson and Merrill, were armed and in pursuit, for the purpose of assassinating Cilley, moved toward the river and nearer the city. The pursuers moved toward the river but missed the parties, and then returned to the city, to which they were soon followed by Graves and the corpse of Cilley.

In 1845, a lawyer named Jones, fought with and killed Dr. Johnson.

In 1851, R. A. Hoole, and A. J. Dallas had a hostile meeting here. Dallas was shot in the shoulder, but recovered.

In 1852, Daniel and Johnson, two Richmond editors, held a barroom set-to here, which terminated in a coffin.

In 1853, Davis and Ridgeway fought before Ridgeway allowed his antagonist to fire without returning the shot.

Celebration To-Night.

We publish this afternoon the programme of the celebration to-night in honor of the crowning victories in PENNSYLVANIA, INDIANA and OHIO.

This simple announcement is alone sufficient to bring out every republican to participate in it. Let the rule of Lord Nelson, get into the fight some how, but be sure to get in, be the motto of republicans on this occasion. Get into the celebration, and give Janesville a thorough shaking up.

Improving.—The Daily Democrat has yet no "positive result" from the elections this week, but thinks the republicans may have carried Ohio and Indiana, and "possibly" Pennsylvania!

The committee appointed to make arrangements for holding a musical convention in this city, this fall, under the direction of Prof. GEORGE F. ROOF, are requested to meet this (Friday) evening, at 7 o'clock, at the music rooms of E. D. Bootman.

The following gentlemen compose the committee:—D. D. Wilson, S. Ford, Jr., Dr. S. P. Cole, F. London, A. Thurston, J. C. Mann, F. H. Hornick, Charles Church, P. R. Sampson and John R. Bennett.

APPROPRIATE.—We learn that the band which opened the Douglas celebration played from the balcony of the Hyatt House, "The Love Not Quick-Step." The appropriateness of this piece will be seen by remembering the opening stanza:

"Love not, love not;
The things you love may die."

ATTENTION

Wide Awakes!
You have all heard from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Let every member be on hand at 7 1/2 o'clock this evening, with torch and full uniform, for a good time.

A. B. McLEAN, Captain.

There will be the usual morning and evening services in the Congregational church on the coming Sabbath. Preaching by Professor Kelsey of Beloit.

The lecture on "Africa and its present inhabitants," by the Rev. R. Smith, of Beaver Dam, announced for this evening, in the Presbyterian church, has been postponed to some future day.

MADISON MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.—Mr. G. F. Hastings of Madison, the general agent of the Madison Mutual Insurance Company, has been in our city for some days past adjusting losses sustained by persons residing in Rock county, and insured in this company. We are gratified to learn that this company is in a flourishing condition and that it sustains its reputation for liberality and promptness in paying its losses and in the general management of its business. As a home institution, we wish it entire success. Orrin Guernsey, Esq., of this city, is the general agent for Rock county.

dawlt*

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—Mr. J. C. Staller of Bradford was kicked by a horse, yesterday, making a severe wound in the face. The full force of the blow struck him in the mouth, breaking both the upper and lower jaw, knocking out fourteen teeth, and making a terrible flesh wound upon the lips. He was attended to by Dr. Palmer of this city, and is this morning in a fair way to recover.

Horrible.—A man by the name of Grinnell a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern road, fell from the up freight train on Wednesday, between the cars, at Barrington station, and was run over. He was torn in pieces, portions of his body were scattered along the track for the length of twenty-five cars.

A VOTE OF THE CARS.—The train on the Milwaukee and Mississippi road from Hanover came in this morning with 23 passengers. A vote was taken, and stood 20 for Lincoln, 2 for Douglas and 1 for Breckinridge. Among the Lincoln men was a postmaster.

THAT PLATFORM.—The Douglas men are unfortunate with their platforms this year. They built one for Douglas to use in this city on the east side of the Hyatt House, but had to pull it down, because the "Little Giant" refused to speak from it. The cold north wind did not suit him; it made him hoarse, he said; so they turned his face southward, which was satisfactory. He spoke from the balcony of the Hyatt House.

Yesterday two democrats met on the street near the place where Douglas was to speak in this city. They had a confab about the platform which had just been erected.

Doug. Dem.—That scaffolding is finished and will do pretty well.

Breck. Dem.—No, it is not quite done.

Doug. Dem.—What's wanting?

Breck. Dem.—A rope.

Insurance.

Having resigned the agency of the Home Insurance Company of New York, in favor of Mr. E. L. Dimock, I cordially recommend him to my friends and the patrons of this soundest of sound insurance companies, when in want of insurance.

J. H. VERMILYE.

It will be seen by the above card that E. L. Dimock has added to his already splendid line of insurance companies the well-known Home of New York city, having cash assets amounting to $1,500,000.00.—Mr. D. has also been appointed agent for one of the solid companies of Old England, viz: The Northern Fire Insurance Company of London, England, with a cash capital of $6,298,000.00. With these additions, the cash capital and surplus of the companies represented by him, amount to the enormous sum of ten millions two hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars. The advertisement for this company will appear to-morrow.

Town of Harmony.

A. C. Bates and Caleb G. Gillett, will address the people at the School House, near John Young's, Saturday Evening, Oct. 13th. A general invitation is extended.

The Bladenburg Dueling Ground.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives some reminiscences of the spot with an account interesting and sad. Here, upon the dueling ground, in a beautiful little grass plot, surrounded by trees, forms, made after the image of God, come to insult Nature and defy Heaven.

In 1814, Edward Hopkins was killed here in a duel. This seems to be the first fashionable murder of which this place was the theatre.

In 1819, A. T. Mason, a United States senator from Virginia, fought with his sister's husband, John McCarty, here. McCarty was a lawyer, and thought there was no necessity of it; but Mason would fight. McCarty named muskets loaded with grape-shot, and so near together that they would hit heads if they fell on their faces. This was changed by the seconds to loading with bullets and taking twelve feet as the distance. Mason was killed instantly, and McCarty, who had his collar bone broken, still lives with Mason's sister in Georgetown. His hair turned white so soon after the fight as to cause comment. He has since been solicited to act as second in a duel, but refused in accordance with a pledge made to his wife, soon after killing her brother.

In 1820, Commodore Decatur was killed in a duel here by Commodore Baron. At the first fire both fell forward, with heads within ten feet of each other; and, as each fully and freely forgave the other still lying on the ground.

Decatur immediately expired, but Baron eventually recovered.

In 1831, two strangers, named Lega and Segn appeared here, fought, and Segn was instantly killed. The neighbors only learned this much from their gloves which they left on the ground. Lega was not hurt.

In 1822, Midshipman Locke was killed here by a clerk of the treasury department named Gibson. The latter was not hurt.

In 1826, Henry Clay fought (his second duel) with John Randolph just across the Potomac, as Randolph preferred to die if at all, on Virginia soil. He received Clay's shot and then fired into the air. This was in accordance with a declaration made to Mr. Benton, who spoke to Randolph of a call the evening before on Mrs. Clay, and alluded to the quiet repose of her child and the repose of the mother. Randolph quickly replied:

"I shall do nothing to disturb the sleep of the child or the repose of the mother." General Jessup, whose funeral I attended last week was Clay's second.

When Mr. Randolph fired he remarked: "I do not shoot at you Mr. Clay," and extending his hand advanced toward Clay, who rushed to meet him. Randolph showed Clay where his ball struck his coat, and said facetiously: "Mr. Clay you owe me a coat."

Clay replied: "Thank God the debt is no greater!" They were friends ever after.

In 1832, Martin was killed by Carr. Their first names are not remembered. They were from the south.

In 1832, Mr. Key, son of Frank Key, and brother to Barton Key, of Sicily's notoriety, met Mr. Sherborn, and exchanged a shot, when Mr. Sherborn said:

"Mr. Key, I have no desire to kill you."

"No matter," said Key, "I came to kill you."

"Very well then," said Sherborn, "I will kill you." And he did.

In 1838, W. J. Graves, of Kentucky, assuming the quarrel of James Watson Webb with Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, selected this place for Cilley's murder; but the parties learning that Webb with two friends, Jackson and Merrell, were armed and in pursuit, for the purpose of assassinating Cilley, moved toward the river and nearer the city. The pursuers moved toward the river but missed the parties, and then returned to the city, to which they were soon followed by Graves and the corpse of Cilley.

In 1845, a lawyer named Jones, fought with and killed a Dr. Johnson.

In 1851, R. A. Hoole, and A. J. Dallas had a hostile meeting here. Dallas was shot in the shoulder, but recovered.

In 1852, Daniel and Johnson, two Richmond editors, held a harmless set-to here, which terminated in a coffee.

In 1853, Davis and Ridgeway fought here; Ridgeway allowed his antagonist to fire without returning the shot.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—Mr. J. C. Staller of Bradford was kicked by a horse, yesterday, making a severe wound in the face. The fall force of the blow struck him in the mouth, breaking both the upper and lower jaw, knocking out fourteen teeth, and making a terrible flesh wound upon the lips. He was attended to by Dr. Palmer of this city, and in this morning in a fair way to recover.

HORRIBLE.—A man by the name of Grinnell a brakeman on the Chicago and Northwestern road, fell from the up freight train on Wednesday, between the cars, at Barrington station, and was run over. He was torn in pieces, portions of his body were scattered along the track for the length of twenty-five cars.

A VOTE ON THE CARS.—The train on the Milwaukee and Mississippi road from Hanover came in this morning with 23 passengers. A vote was taken, and stood 20 for Lincoln, 2 for Douglas and 1 for Breckinridge. Among the Lincoln men was a postmaster.

THAT PLATFORM.—The Douglas men are unfortunate with their platforms this year. They built one for Douglas to use in this city on the east side of the Hyatt House, but had to pull it down, because the "Little Giant" refused to speak from it. The cold north wind did not suit him; it made him hoarse, he said; so they turned his face southward, which was satisfactory. He spoke from the balcony of the Hyatt House.

Yesterday two democrats met on the street near the place where Douglas was to speak in this city. They had a confab about the platform which had just been erected.

Doug. Dem.—That scaffolding is finished and will do pretty well.

Breck. Dem.—No, it is not quite done.

Doug. Dem.—What's wanting?

Breck. Dem.—A rope.

With these additions, the enormous sum of ten millions two hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars. The advertisement for this company will appear to-morrow.

The Stedensburg Dwellers Ground.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives some reminiscences of this spot, which are at once interesting and sad. Here, upon the dwelling ground, in a beautiful little grass plot, surrounded by trees, forms, made after the image of God, came to his end. Nature and duty Heaven.

In 1814, Edward Hopkins was killed here in a duel. This seems to be the first fashionable murder of which this place was the theatre.

In 1819, A. T. Mason, a United States senator from Virginia, fought with his "sister's" husband, John McCarty; here, McCarty was killed, and there, there was no necessity of it; but Mason would fight. McCarty named muskets loaded with grape-shot, and so near together that they would hit each other's feet on their faces. This was changed by the seconds to loading with bullets and taking twelve feet as the distance. Mason was killed instantly, and McCarty, who had his collar bone broken, still lives with Mason's sister in Georgetown. His hair turned white so soon after the fight as to cause comment. He has since been solicited to act as second in a duel, but refused in accordance with a pledge made to his wife soon after killing her brother.

In 1820, Commodore Decatur was killed in a duel here by Commodore Blanton. At the first fire both fell forward, with their heads within ten feet of each other; and, as each supposed himself mortally wounded, each fully and freely forgave the other still lying on the ground.

Decatur immediately expired, but Baron Segal appeared here, fought, and Segal was instantly killed. The neighbors only learned this much from their gloves which they left on the ground. Legas was not hurt.

In 1822, Middleburg Locke was killed here by Clark of the treasury, with their heads within ten feet of each other; and, as each supposed himself mortally wounded, each fully and freely forgave the other still lying on the ground.

Decatur immediately expired, but Baron Segal appeared here, fought, and Segal was instantly killed. The neighbors only learned this much from their gloves which they left on the ground. Legas was not hurt.

In 1826, Henry Clay fought his (second duel) with John Randolph just across the Potomac, as Randolph preferred to die at all, on Virginia soil. He received Clay's shot, and then fired into the air. This was in accordance with a declaration made to Mr. Benton, who spoke to Randolph of a call the evening before on Mrs. Clay, and alluded to the quiet repose of her child and the repose of the mother. Randolph quickly replied:

"I shall do nothing to disturb the sleep of the child or the repose of the mother." General Jackson, whose funeral I attended last week was Clay's second.

When Mr. Randolph fired he remarked: "I do not shoot at you Mr. Clay," and extending his hand advanced toward Clay, who rushed to meet him. Randolph showed Clay where his ball struck his coat, and said facetiously: "Mr. Clay you owe me a coat."

Clay replied: "Thank God the debt is no greater!" They were friends ever after.

In 1832, Martin was killed by Carr. Their first names are not remembered. They were friends to the south.

In 1837, Mr. Key, son of Frank Key, and brother to Barton Key, of Scales notoriety, met Mr. Sherborn, and exchanged a shot, when Mr. Sherborn said:

"Very well then," said Sherborn, "I will kill you." And he did.

In 1838, W. J. Graves, of Kentucky, assuming the quarrel of James Watson Webb with Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, selected this place for Cilley's murder; but the place learning that Webb with two friends, Jackson and Merrill, were armed and in pursuit, for the purpose of assassinating Cilley, moved toward the river and nearer the city. The pursuers moved toward the river but missed the parties, and then returned to the city, to which they were soon followed by Graves and the corpse of Cilley.

In 1845, a lawyer named Jones, fought with and killed Dr. Johnson.

In 1851, R. A. Hoole, and A. J. Dallas had a hostile meeting here. Dallas was shot in the shoulder, but recovered.

In 1852, Daniel and Johnson, two Richmond editors, held a barroom set-to here, which terminated in a coffin.

In 1853, Davis and Ridgeway fought before Ridgeway allowed his antagonist to fire without returning the shot.
